DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) The invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-11 and 33-38 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by USPN 6,245,095 B1 Dobak III et al.

Dobak discloses the same invention being a medical device comprising an elongated core member (42), wherein at least a portion of the core member has a solid cross section perpendicular to the longitudinal axis of the device, a polymer paralyene jacket (20) free of a coil having a textured surface comprising a helical groove with rounded edges positioned proximal of the distal tip (shown in figure 1) and a heparin coating disposed over the polymer jacket (10:49-64).

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed 2/28/07 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. The applicant argues that the amended claims that recite "at least a portion of the core member has a solid cross-section perpendicular to the longitudinal axis of the device" overcomes the Dobak rejection. However the new claim language is extremely broad and is preceded by the phrase "wherein at least a portion of the core member has a". This phrase requires that only some of the core member is solid. It is inherent that every cylindrical tube has a solid portion perpendicular to its longitudinal axis. Otherwise the tube would not be a cylinder. The walls of the core are made of a solid material therefore Dobak clearly discloses an elongated member that has a portion with a solid cross-section. Whether the cross-section is taken along the length of the elongated member at its outer edge, on an angle at its end, or just through a single side of the elongated member there is inherently a solid cross-sectional portion.

The applicant also argues that Dobak fails to teach an additional coating besides the polymer paralyene, but this is not convincing because Dobak gives various reasons for additional coatings including Heparin for inhibiting blood clot formation (10:49-64).
